JOAN OBJECTS TO HER MOTHER LOOKING YOUNG

CHAPTER 8.

Realizing that Joan might become somewhat offensive in her remarks if not curbed in some way Margaret talked to her in a general way about being broad, allowing other people to think and do as they pleased the same as she did, without criticism.

"If we all thought and acted alike, what a stupid place this world would be, wouldn't it, Joan?" she remarked as if casual. She tried always to assume this tone with Joan. "That we all have a right to our opinions, to express ourselves in our own way, makes life interesting where otherwise it would be dull. I believe you are capable of judging for yourself. Mrs. Thompson does not believe Hortense or any young girl is, therefore, you and Hortense are different, and so interest each other. If you were just alike, thought alike, acted alike, you would simply be bored."

"That's right, Mumsie! It would be terrible to have two or a dozen of me," Joan replied, and from that time Margaret noticed that while Joan often showed by her manner her intolerance of the actions of other girls, more conventional than she, it was seldom that she expressed herself as intolerant as before.

Joan had moments of frankness which sometimes almost alarmed her mother. One day Margaret came down to breakfast with her black hair coiled loosely around her shapely head, instead of drawn back in a tight knot, as had been her custom for years.

"Why—why, Mumsie! Whatever have you done to yourself? You look almost pretty—but so silly for my mother."

Margaret laughed, then apologized a little, claimed she had hurried. But after Joan had gone to school she sat for some time before her dressing table, fluffing out her hair a little more, smiling vaguely as something in her face recalled her youth to her mind.

"So silly for my mother," she said. Margaret told the person reflected in the mirror. Then with unnecessary violence she drew her heavy hair into its accustomed unbecoming knot and went about her duties a bit more carefully than usual. She must not forget that she was Joan's mother.

"There, old dear, you look like yourself again!" Joan declared when she returned from school.

"Yes, dear." The answer was meek.

"Some women make such awful fools of themselves, dressing up and trying to appear young. I'm glad you aren't such a fool, Mumsie. When I get as old as you I shall be sensible."

As Margaret was not quite 34, this remark was, to say the least, enlightening, as to what Joan considered "old."

After this Margaret was even more quiet in her dress and actions. Once she regretted she could not go to an affair at the church they attended. Joan remarked in reply:

"I can't see why you care about going. When I am as old as you I shan't want to eat ice cream and cake, and hang around at church socials."

Once again Margaret meekly stood rebuked.

"I am going to college, Mumsie."

Joan had been quiet for some time. Margaret furtively watching her, knew the child had something on her mind, something she would soon divulge. She had so closely watched her child that she could read every change of expression as if her countenance were a printed page.

"What made you think of college, Joan?"

Her question was quiet, but her heart beat strangely, and her breath came in a little gasp. Was she to lose her child, her companion, just when she would need it most? Not that Margaret objected to college, but she had planned differently for herself and Joan, when Joan finished at Miss Corey's. They would travel, see the world. Margaret only knew other countries through books. She longed for a closer, more intimate knowledge of them. And it would be so delightful to travel with Joan—her naive remarks, her fresh, unbiassed opinions would make traveling with her a pleasure.

"Oh, every girl of my character goes to college nowadays! I want to live in the college environment, to be free and independent of home, of you, Mumsie, and—of the independent of me! Why, Joan—"

"Yes, Mumsie, independent even of you."

"It will be a long time before you can enter college, Joan; you must change your mind by that time."

"I'll tell you if I do, but don't bank on it. I am going to college."

COSSACK COAT IS KRIMMER TRIMMED

By ELOISE

A winter wrap must be worn for so many long, cold months that one is likely to become very tired of it, no matter what the style or color. By the end of the season the dark colored, dark fur trimmed coats begin to pall on one and there is a longing for bright colors and vivid tones of spring and summer.

Here is a winter wrap, however, which is bright enough in its color contrast to satisfy midday through the entire season. It is made of the lustrous new winter coating called Pollyanna cloth in black. The coat is built on Cossack lines with wide kimono sleeves and a shawl or surplus collar which crosses in the front and fastens far on the left side. The cuffs, collar and banding around the front panel of the wrap are of pretty gray white krimmer, the season's favored fur.

A narrow shoestring belt may be worn or not, as one sees fit. A wrap of this style is correct upon any occasion of the winter months, for street, afternoon or evening wear.

LOCAL WOMAN ELECTED NATIONAL HISTORIAN OF LEGION AUXILIARY

Mrs. Belle Nye has been elected national historian of the American legion auxiliary, according to advice received here yesterday. Mrs. Nye was one of the delegates from Albuquerque legion post auxiliary to the recent convention in Kansas City.

BETTER BABIES HOLDING OWN AT HEALTH MEETING

Scores of babies, little ones, big ones, brown skinned ones, pink and white ones, chubby and frail, sober and crying, busy nurses and doctors making examinations, solicitous mothers bustling about with blankets and things. That is the rather bewildering (to the layman) state of affairs in the after-school court room during the three days of the first children's health conference which is being conducted this week by the nursing department of the Red Cross club.

Mothers swarmed to the conference on the opening afternoon yesterday, many bringing their children without having first made appointments for their examination.

All were accepted, however, registered and started through their examinations. Baby carriages were parked outside the auditorium and the elevator ran a children's special tour up and down during the hours of the conference.

The big court room was arranged with exhibits of interest to parents on one side and with a series of examination rooms around the opposite side. In these curtained-off compartments sat the physicians and nurses who took the examinations. Miss Gladys Harrie, Red Cross public health nurse, was mistress of ceremonies.

The babies were registered and assigned score cards upon which their records were marked in each test. The first was mental and developmental, testing the child according to his age. The second was on measurements, the third on general physical examination, which included deportment during the test, the fourth was oral and dental and the fifth was on eye, ear, nose and throat.

The children were graded on each point according to standard tables published by the better babies bureau and their final scores were figured by a board of judges. As each examination was made the mothers were informed as to particular defects discovered and how to remedy them. The final scores will not be given out until after the last day of examination, when a photograph will be made of the most perfect child entered in the contest.

The exhibit includes a complete layette of forty pieces, loaned by Kistler-Collister, an automatic picture machine which shows slides on the care of infants, a diet table set with proper meals for children of various ages and from which diet instructions were distributed by Mrs. Maude Doty, county home demonstrator. There are also display a home-made refrigerator for keeping children's milk cold, a home-made fireless cooker, model chairs, cribs and bath equipment and a table of "baby killers" conspicuous among which are painted toys, soothing syrups and rubber nipples.

Mrs. J. G. Gould, chairman of the nursing program committee of the Red Cross, assisted by Mrs. Mike Nash and Mrs. Albert Gaudorf, are registering the entrants in the contest. Mrs. Jack Stutz, Mrs. Arthur Nye, Mrs. P. H. Roberts and Mrs. Edward Miller are scoring the children. A number of physicians, specialists, nurses and assistants will be on duty to make talks at the program.

The examinations will continue today. The conference will close with a program at the federal building on Thursday. Miss Harris and Dr. J. F. Docherty, city and county health officer, will make talks at the program. The announcement of scores of the children entered will also be made at that time.

created at the Kansas City meeting. It is now known as the American legion auxiliary instead of the Women's auxiliary of the American legion. Other delegates from New Mexico were Mrs. Emma Summers, of Albuquerque; Mrs. Mary Chapman, of Gallup, and Mrs. Mabel Helfitt, of Fort Bayard.

SHE WINS HONORS AS A LAWYER IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Dorothy M. Rehfeld.

Women always point with pride to their sisters who have entered the business world and succeeded in work which had heretofore been man's. And those women who attain unusual honors and distinctions in their work are living arguments that women are fitted for something beside maternal duties.

Miss Dorothy M. Rehfeld of Aberdeen, S. D., is one of the successful women about whom South Dakota people boast. Miss Rehfeld is the only independent practicing woman lawyer in her state. In addition to that distinction she is the first woman lawyer in South Dakota to whom was issued a license to practice in all United States courts.

Miss Rehfeld has also been active in suffrage work, and last year she was sent as one of the twelve American delegates to the International Woman's Suffrage Alliance congress held in Geneva, Switzerland.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER PRISON WARDEN WEDS FATHER'S CHAUFFEUR

(By The Associated Press.)

Leavenworth, Kans., Nov. 8.—The courtship which culminated in the marriage of Elmer Inman, serving a sentence in the Kansas state penitentiary, Lansing, near here, and Miss Lavona Coddling, had its inception while Inman was acting as chauffeur to J. K. Coddling, the young woman's father, who was until recently warden of the prison.

Inman, who was serving a sentence of ten to twenty years for complicity in a jewelry robbery at Arkansas City, is back in prison for violation of his parole.

Denison, Tex., Nov. 8.—Mrs. Elmer Inman, wife of an inmate of the Kansas state prison at Lansing, and the daughter of the former warden, J. K. Coddling, who disappeared from Topeka Saturday after failing to secure a parole for her husband, arrived in Denison last night. It was learned today. She arrived here from Tulsa and called upon her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Inman, this morning.

WOMAN PUTS DRESS ISSUE IN POLITICS

Miss Annie Mathews, democratic candidate for register of New York county, has taken the woman's dress issue into politics with the announcement that she favors "wearing what is becoming, bearing in mind always the occasion that it is required for."

In a statement from the Annie Mathews campaign committee, the feminine voters of New York county are told that Miss Mathews "is always well dressed in business hours in a simple modish gown of dark blue" and that she is "equally stunning in evening dress."

Over Fifty Years Ago

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. He finally made up his mind to place some of his treatments before the entire United States and, moving to Buffalo, he put up what he called his Favorite Prescription, and placed it with the druggists in very state in the Union.

That was over fifty-five years ago. For fifty-one years this Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce's has sold more largely throughout the United States than any other medicine of like character. It's the testimony of thousands of women that it has benefited or entirely eradicated such distressing ailments as women are prone to.

For over fifty years some of Dr. Pierce's home medicines have been selling over the drug counters, so that more than fifty million bottles have been sold during that time. This speaks well for the reliability and value of Dr. Pierce's standard home remedies. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood tonic and strength-builder which contains no alcohol, yet has tonic qualities that have endeared it to the American public. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, composed of May-apple, Aloin and jalap, have long been considered a reliable vegetable laxative, in the same way that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womanhood. More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's—namely, Anuric (anti-uric acid), has been successfully used by many thousands of people who write Dr. Pierce in unqualified terms of the benefits received—that their backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble have been completely conquered by the use of Anuric.

DRINK BUTTERMILK.

Very few people realize how valuable buttermilk is as an aid to good health and good looks. Simple as a reminder I would like to make a list of some of the many uses of this inexpensive drink.

If you are reducing drink buttermilk. The caloric value of a glassful is only 80. It has the same amount of nourishment as a glass of skim milk, but it contains acids which are beneficial to the system.

If you have a muddy skin drink buttermilk. The acids mentioned above stimulate certain organs in the body so that the skin will be clear and fresh.

If you are trying to gain weight and cannot drink whole milk, as is the case with so many women, drink buttermilk with cream added. To make this drink fattening you should add four or more tablespoons of cream. It will give the buttermilk a richer taste.

If you have indigestion drink buttermilk, which will aid you in digesting other foods and is itself one of the most easily assimilated articles of nourishment.

If your skin has become tanned or freckled use buttermilk externally. It bleaches the skin and gives it a soft, fine feeling. It will not, of course, completely eliminate all freckles, but it will help to do so.

If your skin has become rough or chapped, rub it with buttermilk, for this will keep it soft and in good condition.

If you want an unusually good bleach scrape two tablespoons of horseradish into a cup of buttermilk, massage this into the arms or the neck. If you use it on the face be careful not to let any of it get into the eyes.

Pink Eyes: Children are often cured of sucking their thumbs through having something painted on the ends of them that is unpleasant to the taste, but harmless to their digestion. Bitter aloes is used for this. During the hours of sleeping the hands should be encased in a mitten without a thumb, as a child who is broken of this habit during sleep will rarely have to be corrected for it during the waking hours.

Maud H.: Do not take the water late in the day and you will not have this trouble. Take one pint of very warm water before breakfast and if you salt it slightly you will find that you will not have to resort to these pills. The salt in the water carries it into the intestines, where it assists in cleaning the system through this channel. If the salt is omitted the kidneys act upon it and are flushed.

Reader: As you bleached the coloring from the hair, nothing will help it, except to wait for nature to restore it. You can dye the parts that look badly, but that should be done by someone who knows how to do the work artistically.

The actual weight of the human brain or the size of the head is no sign of special intelligence.

Pimples and boils are signs of lowered vitality

A familiar food now used to correct them

PIMPLES and blackheads (acne) and boils are often the signals of a falling off in health. "A bad acne may indicate profound debility," writes a physician connected with a number of leading New York hospitals, and "the repeated occurrence of boils should always be looked upon as an indication of lowered vitality."

It has been found from actual clinical tests that remarkable results are obtained in treating these complaints with Fleischmann's Yeast.

Today Fleischmann's Yeast is everywhere recognized as a valuable "conditioner." It is a fresh food which supplies in rich quantities the newly discovered vitamins known to be lacking from many of our foods. It thus corrects lowered vitality which is so often the underlying cause of these minor ailments.

To protect themselves against these complaints many are making Fleischmann's Yeast a part of their regular diet. It is a highly digestible food assimilated like any other fresh food. You will like its fresh, distinctive flavor and the clean, wholesome taste it leaves in your mouth.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast before or between meals—from two to three cakes a day. Only one precaution: if troubled with gas dissolve yeast first in very hot water. This does not affect the efficacy of the yeast. You will like Fleischmann's Yeast spread on toast or crackers, dissolved in milk or fruit-juices, or just plain. Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast and get it fresh daily.

Send 4 cents in stamps for the interesting booklet, "The New Importance of Yeast in Diet." So many inquiries are coming in daily for this booklet that it is necessary to make this nominal charge to cover cost of handling and mailing. Address THE FLEISCHMANN COMPANY, 701 Washington Street, New York, N. Y.

The need for scientifically tested yeast

Fresh yeast has been proved by recent scientific tests to be a valuable food for correcting run-down condition, constipation, indigestion and certain skin disorders. These original tests were all made with Fleischmann's Yeast. Beware of untested yeast-vitamins preparations that contain drugs or other mixtures. Fleischmann's Yeast (fresh) is a pure food, rich in vitamins, in which it measures up to the high standards set by laboratories and hospitals. The familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label is the only form in which Fleischmann's Yeast for Health is sold.
